7. Inspects and supervises civil aircraft and aviation materiel technically and issues applicable certification.
8. Organizes medical service at airfields according to international conventions.
9. Discharges other functions as authorized.

Airfield Functions

Exercises direct supervision over the construction and maintenance of airfields and landing fields. Approval must be obtained from the administration for the construction of new airfields or landing fields, and each plan for such a field must be forwarded for its approval. Airfields and landing fields cannot be put in use without the administration's approval. The administration may forbid the use of a field or landing field if it is not maintained according to regulations.

The Administration of Civil Aviation includes Centers for Assuring Air Safety and Administrations of Airfields.

Centers for assuring air safety are charged with regulating and supervising aviation in the air space of Yugoslavia as concerns civil aircraft registered in Yugoslavia and civil and state aircraft registered in other countries.

Administrations of airfields are charged with maintenance of fields and flying space above them, and are charged with coordinating the work of auxiliary services at airfields.

The Administration for Civil Aviation is managed by a director, appointed by the Federal Executive Council.

This decree supersedes the Ruling on Abolishing the Main Directorate of Yugoslav Air Transportation and the Establishment of the Main Administration of Civil Aviation (Sluzbeni list FNRJ, No 21, 1952), and the Decree on Federal Agencies and Establishments in so far as their work is connected with civil aviation.
